

CONSTRUCTION DEFECT

The purchase of a home represents the one of the largest financial investments a person makes in their lifetime. It is both a practical decision and an emotional matter: the home is the place that provide safety and shelter, and also where memories are made, families are formed, and dreams are realized.

Transactions to buy and sell real estate can be problematic for a variety of reasons, commonly resulting from breach of contract and real or perceived construction defects resulting from the original construction or from additions or modifications made long after the original construction is complete.

Colorado Mediators & Arbitrators offers dispute resolution for real estate disputes. Our unique panel of industry experts and attorneys are skilled and knowledgeable in real estate matters, adding value-added experience and offering meaningful dispute resolution for your particular case .

CoMA's Panel Members include engineers, attorneys, and insurance claims professionals who are seasoned in mediation and arbitration.
